TRIBBEY MADE POOR WITNESS

Contradicted Himself Repeatedly
During Severe Cross Examination Today.

WAS ON STAND TWELVE HOURS

Claimed he Knew His Assailants But Later Sought to Learn Their Identity.

The whitecapping cases continue to draw large and interested crowds in the local court. Tribbey, the main witness for the State finished today after being on the stand for many hours. His testimony on direct examination was completely riddled on cross examination. He contradicted himself and weakened the State's case in a large measure. After he claimed he was positive he recognized the men under indictment, it was brought out that he had said he did not know who they were and made several attempts in various ways to learn their identity.

Full accounts of yesterday afternoon and today's proceedings follow:

Tuesday Afternoon

Tribbey was turned over to the mercies of the defense Tuesday afternoon and Congressman Watson turned loose his guns broadside on the man and attempted to riddle the story told under the questioning of Prosecutor Hack. Congressman Watson trotted out the family skeleton with the old style directoire gown like Mother Eve wore—free of all raiment.

Tribbey reluctantly recited the story of his courtship with his present wife whom he never married. He did not like to admit that he didn't marry her when they went away to wed, and gave as an excuse that she did not want to be married. He said the common law marriage occurred twenty-seven years ago and that his wife was now thirty-eight years of age. This would make her eleven years of age when they were married. Tribbey was made to answer many questions regarding his attitude to their only living child, Clessie, who is now twenty-four years old. After the boy reached the age of eighteen, the father said he could never get along with him. The son would invariably take the part of the mother and this led to many, long family squalls.

During the course of the cross examination the defense went into several years of Tribbey's life to show the bad feeling that existed on his part towards the defendants. In each instance he had either threatened or attempted to kill them in some manner or another. This point was brought out to show a motive for indicting the defendants; that it might have been done in a spirit of revenge. Although Tribbey entered a mild denial in every instance, the defense will attempt to show later by other witnesses that Tribbey did make such threats and made them repeatedly.

"Did you threaten to kill Mr. and Mrs. James McFatridge one day as they passed your house in a vehicle?" asked Mr. Watson.

"I did not," replied Tribbey. Several times such questions were put to the witness. He would only deny them after deliberating a long time and then his answer would lose force. He denied that a mob attempted to take him out of his home about ten years ago as was commonly reported.

Much of the evidence that oozed in during the cross examination was for the purpose of showing the unfriendliness on the part of Tribbey and not the neighbors; that he was the aggressor and agitator of the frequent quarrels wherein he was invariably one of the principals.

Another point made was that Tribbey frequently and often was accused of running with women of questionable character.

The first "affinity" that came across the life of the two Tribbeyes was fifteen years ago, when his wife accused him of being intimate with a Miss Emma Earnest. In after years there were many others, including Blanche Williams Alsman and Bertha Smith. A peculiar incident was brought to light regarding the Smith girl affair. Tribbey was alleged to have been keeping company with her for some time when the Mary Magdalene spirit touched her and she "got religion." The girl joined church. Mrs. McFatridge, mother of two of the defendants now charged with being whitecappers was instrumental in having her join church. Until that time Tribbey and Mrs. McFatridge had been good friends for she was a sister to his wife. But that was the straw that broke the camel's back when Bertha quit the "navy" and joined the church. At the conclusion of the service where the young lady affiliated with the church Tribbey got into an altercation with the McFatridges. He accosted Mrs. McFatridge and is reported as saying to her: "You are the cause of this. You coaxed that girl to the mourners' bench." This occurred in the front part of the church and it is said that the minister had to quiet the disturbance. Another instance with a church setting was one that Tribbey divulged of his own volition and that when he said Charles McFatridge wanted to whip him once in the Franklin M. E. church.

At another point in the cross examination Mr. Watson asked Tribbey if it was not a fact that he had a gun and leveled it on the front gate post and threatened to kill Charles McFatridge when the latter came along and called him a vile name in order to incite an altercation.

Tribbey admitted quarreling with Byrl Kennedy and said he was not on speaking terms with him either. Kennedy married his niece. The pair were out driving when they met Tribbey and his wife and it is alleged that Tribbey turned to his wife and said: "I would just as soon get a gun and kill that s—o—a b—." The next war cloud that hovered over the now perspiring witness was the Goldman affair. Goldman is a Jew and lives near the Tribbeyes. He is one of the defendants in the present case. Tribbey first said his objections to Goldman was that he was always meddling in his affairs. The boy is a student in the Carthage high school and often borrowed newspapers of the Tribbeyes. Tribbey said his wife would loan them to young Goldman often before he would get an opportunity to read them. Then again he thought the lad was too intimate with his wife. He said they went driving together and that he had seen them in a buggy down near Arlington. The father of the boy also came in for a few rounds at this time. He was another on the social list that Tribbey keeps for folks he is always "out to."

The two men have quarreled and this in spite of the fact that Goldman is at present on Tribbey's note for $375. Mr. Watson asked Tribbey if he had not repeatedly shook his fist at persons passing his home who were known to be unfriendly on account of his overbearing actions. And if he had not put his hand to his nose with the fingers extended like up-rights on a picket fence. He replied that such was not the case. A fight between Tribbey and Goldman alleged to have taken place in the Miller law building was now reviewed. It was said that the two men got into a squabble and that Goldman picked up a chair and threatened to use it a la Hebrew. And Tribbey, showing the white feather crawled under a table. Tribbey denied this in his "general denial disposition."

Enters now Perry Collins, another defendant. Tribbey was asked if he did not have frequent fights with Collins. He said he did. He was asked if he had not said he would kill Collins. Ditto denial. To bring out a point about the frequent visits to the Collins home on the part of his wife he was asked if it was not a fact that his wife baked her bread in the Collins stove. With rising eyebrows and sinking spirits he responded in the affirmative.

Tribbey said he had been living with his wife—as a wife—since the tragedy and even occupied the same bed until Monday night of this week. He admitted that she had been a wife to him until last Saturday night. Despite all of this he said they had frequent quarrels and especially when they talked of the whitecapping cases to be tried. He said his wife cursed him many times and even as recent as last Sunday. Although she often struck him he declared he never fought back and would give her the "chautauqua salute" in the way of showing the white flag, whenever she kicked up a rumpus.

Another of the "unfair" sex brought in on the scene was one Blanche Williams Alsman. It is alleged that he gave her a gold band that belonged to his mother and that she wore it around Arlington and showed it to many people. It seems that this particular party had a passion for jewelry for a string of gold beads figured in the "stringing process" employed by Tribbey to win over her affections. He was asked if he did not buy a string of gold beads from an Arlington jeweler and he replied that he did. He said he carried them about with him for some time and could not remember where he disposed of them. Refreshing his memory after giving several inane excuses he said he was not sure but what he gave them to the Williams girl. She was seen to wear a certain strand of beads that Tribbey purchased.

One story told by Tribbey had a touch of pathos in it. That was when he told of the first time his wife left him. He said they quarreled and came to blows and then and there she made the declaration that she would leave him. After dusk she put the threat into execution. He watched her leave the back door and climb a fence in the rear. Standing at the window he waited for her to return as she had done on many occasions previous, but not once did she even look back. About ten o'clock he began to fear she might suicide as she had often said she would do, so he went to the Collins home and in company with Collins instituted a search. Loth carrying lanterns. Their search was a fruitless one and Tribbey returned home sad in heart. He told Collins of his fear that his wife might kill herself and said if she did and they found her body the people would surely mob him.

Afterwards he learned that she had gone to the home of a friend and soon she returned to their home after he promised to be a different man. For nine days they lived without a fight when his wife found the tell-tale beads in his pocket and then there was Old Nick to pay. All this explaining the foxy Tribbey could employ did not explain the bead incident away.

Tribbey was then asked about his church relations. He said that after separating from his wife he took up church going.

"You were expelled, were you not?" he was asked.

Nope. They just dropped my name from the list," was his response.

He was then asked if it was not a fact that he brought the name of Guernsey Drysdale into this affair because he thought the latter was instrumental in having him expelled from the church. He answered no to this query.

Tribbey was then asked to make a "Bradstreet report" of his financial condition. This he did not like to do and he said so. He told how he gave his wife a deed for one-third of the farm and then within a month had her deed it back to him.

Tribbey was now brought down to a few days before the whitecapping. He said he quarreled with his wife on the Sunday before the whitecapping. On Saturday night prior to this he did not sleep with his wife. George Waldon, the colored farm hand had come to the house to stay and he left. He said his wife occupied one of the rooms upstairs while Waldon occupied the other. He suspected that everything was not just exactly right with them. He said he remained in the yard until a late hour watching them. He then went to the barn and slept the remainder of the night. The next few nights he slept down stairs alone as he did the night that they dragged him from his bed.

Heard Wednesday

The most remarkable developments in the trial came this morning with the conclusion of the cross examination by Congressman Watson. On direct examination Tuesday morning Tribbey declared he knew the men that whitecapped him and pointed them out in a very dramatic manner in the court room. He said he was positive as to the identification. Mr. Watson, through questioning Tribbey had him repeat the story and as a result he not only contradicted himself on many occasions, but tread into such deep water that his answers were light and frivolous. He said he had been in the habit of locking the screen door leading from his bedroom to a veranda, but on the eventful night did not lock it, but asked his wife to do so. He claimed she did not comply with this desire, and he accused her of anticipating the visit of the whitecappers. He heard footsteps outside about one o'clock, but did not make any effort to rise either then or when the men surrounded his bed. Last evening he said the gas light in his room was not lighted. Today he declared it was. When asked if the men were masked he replied that they were. Guernsey Drysdale wore a cloth about his face he said.

"How did you know it was Guernsey Drysdale?" asked Mr. Watson.

"Knew his size and knew him by his hand," replied Tribbey.

"Are his hands any different than any other man?"

"Yes. They were at that time of year."

"What time?"

"Summer time. They were yellow and had long black hair on them."

"Is that the only way you had of knowing it was Guernsey Drysdale?"

"Yes sir."

"When did you see his hands?"

"When he tied my hands."

"In what position were your hands when he tied them?"

"Down by the side of my body."

"How could you see then if you were lying down?"

"Well, -er- I don't know just exactly."

Such was the evidence against the most prominent defendants. Tribbey said he knew Byrl Kennedy, another defendant, by a slouch hat he wore and by his shape and size. He said Charles McFatridge was bundled up a great deal and he didn't get to see him so well, but he knew him by the shape of his square shoulders and the size of his head. These three men were masked. Lafe Goldman and Harry McFatridge were not masked. He said they stood in the lighted room and remained at the end of his bed grinning at him. Both of these defendants, he testified in cross examination wore the same hats they were in the habit of wearing and have since worn occasionally. Tribbey said that while the parties named in the indictment were engaged in binding him another man came in the adjoining room and stood at his wife's bedside. This party, he said, was a white man with black on his face.

He was asked if he recognized the men at any other time. If he had not pulled the sack from off his head and seen some of them. He replied in the negative. Asked if the night was dark and he said yes. Mr. Watson asked him if there were any stars out.

"Nope. Only those that I saw."

"Didn't you tell your wife, in the presence of George Waldon, that you pulled the sack off your head with your left hand and there recognized who the parties were?" said Mr. Watson.

Tribbey replied that he did not say this. The attorneys for the defense then called upon Tribbey, asking him if he would be willing to remove his clothing and show the scars of his wounds, if there were any, to the jury. The State objected to this, but Judge Sparks ruled that it was not a matter of choice with Tribbey. Later the prosecuting witness said he would agree to take off his clothing and this will be done later in the trial.

Tribbey showed a sullen disposition again today and Prosecutor Hack had to caution him to answer the questions put to him by Mr. Watson.

On the opening of the trial this morning Prosecutor Hack and Congressman Watson had a little tilt over the actions of Tribbey on the witness stand. Mr. Watson complained to the court that Tribbey would always look towards the prosecutor before he would answer. He said he did not think Mr. Hack was coaching Tribbey or giving him any tips for answers, but the man's demeanor was not in keeping with the ethics of the court.

The trial opened this morning with some of the most disgusting and revolting testimony ever heard in the local courts. There was a deep sigh of relief all over the court room when the attorneys had finished with it.

Congressman Watson reviewed the story of the night of the whitecapping, bringing out much detail in the questioning. Tribbey said he retired about eight o'clock and while it was customary for him to lock his screen door he did not do so on this night, but asked his wife to do it. In his opinion, his wife not only left the door unlocked, but opened it and propped it back. Tribbey said the first thing he remembered that night was hearing footsteps on the veranda outside. He did not make any effort to arise, but laid there and waited for the men to come in and take him from his bed. Neither did he offer resistance when they attempted to tie him and drag him from the house.

"Did you not say on direct examination yesterday morning, Mr. Tribbey, that the first thing you knew of the affair was when you woke up and saw the men being over you?" asked Mr. Watson.

He could not give an intelligent answer to this question as he could not to many others where he made conflicting statements.

One of the strange things in connection with the trial is the fact that while Tribbey sat in the witness chair and graphically described a night of most barbarous torture, hardly one whit of sympathy did he elicit from a single person in the court room.

In continuing his testimony in the cross examination, Tribbey said another man whom he did not know was in the house and stood near his wife's bed in the adjoining room. This man was white and to his best knowledge was "blackened up."

After he was taken outside and beaten, he was asked again, if at any time he had the sack removed from his head. He replied in the negative. Then the defense brought out the facts that his wife, whom he is now prosecuting, washed his wounds after he came into the house, heated hot cloths and bandages and put them over his eyes, greased his body where he was wounded and put a beef steak over his blackened eyes. Also she agreed, as did Waldon, to go after a doctor, but this he refused to allow.

One of the best cards played by the State was when they got Tribbey to admit he did not know who the parties were that whitecapped him. It came about in a most natural manner and that it had much weight with the jury was evidenced in the merry twinkles they had in their eyes when it was being introduced. Tribbey said he had his wife and the colored farm hand, Waldon, clean up the tar and feathers around the maple tree. He also admitted that he went out into the yard the following morning and gathered up some pieces of his shirt that had been torn from his body. When asked why he did this and why he wanted to have the muss cleaned up, he replied:

"I wanted to keep the matter quiet and see if any one said anything about it, and then we would have them dead to right."

"Why did you want to know who they were, John?" said Mr. Watson, "when you already knew who they were?"

This was a puzzler for John and in an instant he knew he had made a gross mistake. But he even went further into the pitfall. He said that the next morning, as soon as he was able to walk around, he went down to the road and tried to track some of the people. He said he found a buggy track and the track of horses' hoofs that he believed were made by Charles McFatridge. When pressed for answers along this line of thought, he unwittingly said that he knew the tracks were made by a mare with big feet, and that McFatridge owned such an animal. Many such light and frivolous replies were made under Watson's fire. He also claimed to know the tracks made by the buggy and said he recognized McFatridge's buggy when the rig passed that night just as he was freeing himself from the maple tree.

After the crime of the ill-fated night he said the question of time came up in a discussion between his wife and Waldon. He claimed they asked him what time it was as he laid on his bed. No reason was given for this, and still he admitted there was a large clock in the room where the trio was discussing the subject. Later, he said he thought he was going to die and Waldon assured him he would recover. Then he admitted he had implored of them to get him some poison that he might kill himself. Waldon told him there was no use to do that as he was alright and would soon be a well man. Afterwards he said he heard Waldon say to his wife in an adjoining room that he knew a man named Sam Pitts up near Carthage whom they whipped years ago, and it made a man of him. The next morning Tribbey is alleged to have had a conversation with his wife, asking her if she knew who were in the party and that he thought Harry McFatridge and Guernsey Drysdale were there. Mr. Watson asked him:

"In that conversation, didn't you say to your wife that your son Clessie, was there and was the leader of the pack?"

He replied that he did not remember saying this, although he would not say positive that he did not say it. He was then asked if he did not say to his wife in the presence of Waldon, that he did not know who did it. He replied no to this question. He was then asked if Waldon had not said to him: "Tribbey, who do you think would do such a thing?" And Tribbey declared he did not know or have the least idea who they were. This conversation he denied on cross examination.

He was then asked if he did not say to some one in September: "I will send these men to the penitentiary and get some damages." He denied this. He was then asked if he did not say to George Waldon on Thursday following the whitecapping that he knew Guernsey Drysdale by feeling his hands. He was also asked if he did not say to his wife that four of the party were members of the family and in the presence of George Waldon later on name at least nine persons whom he thought were in the mob. He denied all of these statements.

Mr. Watson then asked him about a conversation said to have occurred between him and William H. Alsman in which he said: "I had my wife and George Waldon clean up the tar and feathers and we are going to keep this matter quiet and see if we can find out who the parties were, for I do not know who they are."

Tribbey denied part of this conversation. He was then asked if he had not said to Ralph Munden, while they were engaged in farming: "You

NIGHT RIDERS INVADE STATE

Indiana Farmer Suffers From Visitors From Over the River.

REFUSED TO POOL HIS TOBACCO

For This Rejection of Plan Offered by Kentucky Tobacco Growers It Is Said That the Fire Which Destroyed Warrick County Farmer's Barn Was Started by Someone in Sympathy With the Designs of His Former Neighbors on the Kentucky Side of the River.

Evansville, Ind., Dec. 2.—Night riders destroyed the barn of W. H. Gosar, in Warrick county, near here. The barn was filled with tobacco and the loss is estimated at $3,000, with insurance of $1,000. Mr. Gosar recently moved to Warrick county from Kentucky, and it is said while a resident of that state he had refused to pool his tobacco.

STABBED TO DEATH

Vincent Hermann Receives a Fatal Wound Following Altercation.

Logansport, Ind., Dec. 2.—Vincent Hermann, nineteen years old, head night call boy for the Pan-Handle railroad in this city, was stabbed by Joseph Milburn, another call boy. Hermann died at St. Joseph's hospital a few hours later. The knife used by Milburn cut the jugular vein, and it was impossible for physicians to stop the flow of blood. It seems that Hermann ordered Milburn to do some work, and when the latter refused, invited him outside the Pan-Handle yard office to fight. Hermann, it is alleged, struck and knocked Milburn down and then Milburn, it is further alleged, pulled out his knife and cut Hermann's throat. Milburn is held on a charge of manslaughter.

Bride-to-Be Prostrated.

Sullivan, Ind., Dec. 2.—Miss Vera Bishop, who was to have been married this week to Melvin Tennis, who was murdered Saturday night, is prostrated by the death of her lover. She has been in a semi-conscious condition since first hearing of his death. The discovery that seventeen-year-old Tom Dunn of Jackson Hill was driving with Tennis during most of Saturday afternoon, has been the only new development in the case, which has stirred the entire county. Dunn, however, has proved beyond any question that he spent the time from about 5 o'clock Saturday night to 8 o'clock Sunday morning, with friends in Dunnville.

INDIANA POLITICS

By Robert G. Tucker.

Indianapolis, Dec. 2.—Colonel Winfield T. Durbin of Anderson is not a candidate for the chairmanship of the Republican state committee, nor will he be. He is rather inclined to be nettled by the reports that he wants the place. "You can say for me positively that I am not a candidate for the state chairmanship," said Colonel Durbin. "I don't want the place and would not take it. No one has any authority to say that I wanted it or would be a candidate. I intend to give my time to business from now on as I have devoted enough to politics." His determination not to be a candidate will have an important bearing on the plans of the various factions for reorganizing the committee. He is regarded as a past master at organization building and many politicians say that he is the logical man to lead the party out of the wilderness into which it was cast by its recent overwhelming defeat. Colonel Durbin, however, is determined to retire from the political game. It is said that he feels that he has achieved all the glory and honor there is in it for him and that he ought to give his attention to his business interests.

Auditor Billheimer has completed the enumeration of voters for 1909, or which the legislature must base its legislative and congressional apportionments, if such apportionments are made. The changes in population in the state have been such that reapportionments are due, but politicians regard it as altogether unlikely that any will be made. The fact that the senate is Republican and the house Democratic explains this. An apportionment act must take the same course as any other act of the legislature and it is not believed that any program of reapportionment can be arranged that will meet the approval of both houses. The total vote of the state is shown to be 745,227, of which 17,065 is colored. Several of the congressional districts, as at present organized, will be far short of the average of 57,325 and will be subject to redistricting, of course, if the legislature succeeds in reaching a program satisfactory to both houses. The First district has 50,972 voters; the Second, 54,935; the Third, 45,047; the Fourth, 47,445; the Fifth, 63,714; the Sixth, 56,671; the Eighth, 60,773; the Ninth, 55,756; the Tenth, 67,507; the Eleventh, 56,496; the Twelfth, 52,003; the Thirteenth, 61,102. Several districts show a slight falling off in the number of voters. The gain of 8,000 in the Fifth is the largest, aside from the Seventh.

J. W. Wood, Democrat, of Evansville, was elected chairman of the Indiana railroad commission, succeeding Union Banner Hunt, Republican, who resigned two weeks ago. Judge J. F. McClure of Anderson, successor to Hunt, took his oath of office. Wood has served on the commission since its organization. He left here last night for Chicago to attend a meeting of railroad commissions of Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin and other states. The Indiana commission will sit at South Bend, Friday, to hear testimony in the suit instituted by the manufacturers of South Bend and Mishawaka for a reduction in freight rates on coal.

LOCAL WOODMEN ATTENDED MEETING

Held at New Castle For All Lodges in the Sixth District—Degree Work.

CANDIDATES TO BE INITIATED

The Modern Woodmen met last night, says the New Castle Courier, to complete final arrangements for entertaining the delegates to the Sixth district log rolling which was held here today. The committees in charge of the work have it well in hand and anticipate nothing but success from first to last.

The Odd Fellows lodge room was used for convention purposes and there was a big representation of the various lodges in the district. The Richmond degree team exemplified the secret work of the order and a class of candidates were initiated and sent through the work.

The program as outlined by the committee opened at 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon and at 7:45 o'clock in the evening. There is to be an exhibition drill on Race street, immediately after the evening uniformed parade.

A number of Woodmen from this city attended this meeting.

The members of the Sixth Council district of the Indiana Medical Association will be entertained by the Rush County Medical Association in this city tomorrow. The crowning event of the day will be the big banquet which is to be served at six o'clock in the evening. This promises to surpass all attempts which have ever been made along this line.

The following counties will be represented at the meeting: Wayne, Rush, Franklin, Shelby, Union, Fayette, Hancock and Henry.

A VENERABLE OLD LADY

On Her 91st Birthday Enjoys Gathering of Five Generations.

A venerable Rush county lady and pioneer is Mrs. Nancy Hilligoss, who on election day, November 3d, last, celebrated her 91st birthday, and her daughter, Mrs. M. J. Hilligoss-Crippen, of 454 East Washington street, Indianapolis, with whom she has been living for the past seven months, entertained a number of guests in her honor.

Aunt Nancy Hilligoss is the widow of Elias T. Hilligoss, who lived three miles south of Homer. She was the daughter of Daniel Thomas, who was one of the earliest settlers in Indiana.

Mrs. Hilligoss, in spite of her extreme age, is enjoying fairly good health, and is able to walk about. On the day of her recent birthday party, she enjoyed the celebration as much as the youngest great-great-grandchild. Five generations of descendants were represented at this gathering, as follows: Mrs. M. J. Hilligoss-Crippen, Mrs. Matie Arnold, Mrs. Daisy Graham, Arnold Edwin Graham, 12 years old, and Joe Workman Graham, 3 years old.

Aunt Nancy has been quite feeble the past seven months, but owing to good nursing and excellent care given her by her daughter, she is again able to be about.

BRIDE AND GROOM ELUDED FRIENDS

Mr. and Mrs. Derby Green Were Successfully Carried Away in An Automobile.

BOARDED CAR AT ARLINGTON

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Derby Green, who were quietly married at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Megee, in North Main street last night, caused the young couple much trouble in their attempt to give them a good send-off.

Quite a crowd collected around the residence and the wedding guests saw that they were going to have trouble in safely guarding Mr. and Mrs. Green until they got out of the city.

The unexpected happened, when Dr. Frank Green, a brother of the groom, drove his automobile up on the lawn in front of the Megee residence and the bride and groom were rushed into the machine and were off before anyone in the crowd knew what had happened. They were taken to Arlington in eighteen minutes and then boarded a traction car for Indianapolis.

The many friends of the groom had many "stunts" in store for him had they succeeded in capturing him. It is reported that they intended to fasten him up in a crate, place him in a wagon and haul him about the streets.

GAME WARDEN IS BUSY THIS SEASON

There Have Been no Arrests in This County Since the Opening of the Season.

THE SCARCITY OF VIOLATORS

This is the time of the year when the game warden gets in his work. He is a spy that is authorized to ply his trade and a terror to the party who violates the game laws. He works in all counties and arrests every man without a license and a written permit to hunt on farms.

So far there has been no arrest made in this county since the open season and if the game warden depends only on violators who have broken the law by killing too many quail, he will find few offenders in this locality.

go up and tell the Kennedy boys that you were in the mob that night and say you know who the parties are. See what they will say." Tribbey likewise denied this.

It was also inferred that he had said Squire Ball would send his wife and Perry Collins to the penitentiary and the court here would attend to the rest of the gang.

Another damaging point made by the defense was the introduction of a conversation reputed to have taken place between Tribbey and Jefferson Addison in the Morristown bank. Tribbey is said to have made the following assertions:

"I do not want these boys to go to prison, all I want is some of their money."

He was then asked if it was true that he had employed Douglas Morris ex-circuit judge here, to institute damage suits in event convictions resulted in the present cases. He replied that he had not. Later it developed that he had held consultation with Douglas Morris nearly every day since he was able to come to this city and that Morris had a physician come to his office and examine his wounds and was also instrumental in having him photographed and accompanied him to the photograph gallery.

The defense finished its cross examination about eleven-thirty and Prosecutor Haek took up the work of rebuttal of all the foregoing testimony brought out by the defense. He failed in his first attempt to break in on the defense breastworks, drew blood and had to "go back to first." This was in an effort to show that Douglas Morris was attorney for Tribbey in his divorce suits. Tribbey said that he had not employed Morris. Haek then introduced as evidence the rope with which the white-cappers bound Tribbey. It was a grewsome looking piece of rope with blood and feathers still clinging to it. Tribbey identified it. He said Waldon had told him to take care of it.

This afternoon Tribbey was again put on the stand. He said that on Friday morning, following the white-capping, Waldon bought the Rushville Republican and Indianapolis Star that contained stories of the brutal attack. After reading them he asked Waldon and his wife if they had told anyone and they replied that they had not. Tribbey was asked a few more questions of minor importance and left the stand after being on continuously since early Tuesday morning.

Mrs. Nordloh, a witness was called but could not appear on account of illness. William Mann, a harness maker of Arlington was next called. He was a State witness. He said he went to the farm of Perry Collins two days after the whitecapping and that Collins said to him he did not think they used boards with nails in them and that he had heard Tribbey say he knew he did wrong, but never intended to do it again.

Ora Nordloh of Arlington was the next witness. He said he saw Mrs. Tribbey and Perry Collins talking together in a field near Jim Munden's farm. After she left he said Collins told him Tribbey ought to be egged. Said Mrs. Tribbey would help to do it and asked him to assist. He refused. Said Collins had asked him last Monday what he intended to testify to in the trial and when he told him he asked him to repeat what he had said in the field on the day mentioned.

John H. Nordloh testified that he heard a conversation over the telephone between Collins and Mrs. Tribbey last spring. Said Mrs. Tribbey proposed going over and "cleaning out" her house. Collins said she would have to have help. "Mr. Watson, in cross examination brought out the fact that Nordloh was eavesdropping and what he heard was not material.

Riley Bogue testified that Mrs. Tribbey was at his house one day in April and he heard her make a date with Collins. About dusk the pair

POSTOFFICE REFORM

Important Department to Be Put on a Business Basis.

Washington, Dec. 2.—The four offices of assistant postmaster-general will be abolished, a director of posts with seven assistants provided for and the entire postal service of the United States divided into fifteen separate districts if the bill providing for the revision of the postal laws which is being prepared by the joint postal investigation commission of congress appointed two years ago is passed by congress. The commission which is composed of three senators and three representatives has been in session for the past week and expects to complete the work of preparing the bill this week.

It is claimed that a director of posts appointed to hold office until removed for cause and who shall receive a high salary will tend to improve the service through a continuity of policies for the benefit of the postal service. By providing for seven assistants to the director of posts the members of the commission believe that the disadvantages due to frequent changes and the appointment of inexperienced men to the four offices of assistant postmaster-general can be obviated. These assistant directors are, according to the provisions of the bill, also to hold office during good behavior. The postmaster-general would continue as the executive head of the department.

A Chicago man resented a slur on his wife's hat and then proceeded to trim the offender.

O. P. C. H. Contest

The boys around the Knecht clothing store are seeing O. P. C. H. in their dreams. The letters are used as a trademark and stand for One Price Clothing House. A few days ago honors were offered for those substituting the most and best sentences employing the four letters for the words. The honors fell to Miss Edith Hiner, Mrs. Elza Powell and Mrs. Margaret Morton.

Quite a few answers were received among which were:

RETURNED TO GOOD OLD RUSH.

John Whitlock and family arrived here from Portland, Oregon, last night. Mr. Whitlock has bought George Sharer's bicycle store and repair shop in Commercial block and took charge today. This leaves him in charge of the same place of business he quit when he went west a few months ago. He says Rush county is good enough for him. This excellent family will be given a hearty welcome back to their future home.

COPYRIGHT, 1907, BY ROBERT W. CHAMBERS.

When he had sent the note away by the messenger he walked back to the bay window, hands in his pockets, a worried expression in his gray eyes. This sort of thing must not be repeated. The boy must halt in his tracks and face sharply the other way. Besides, his own income was limited—much too limited to admit of many more loans of that sort.

He ought to see Gerald at once, but somehow he could not in decency appear personally on the heels of his loan. A certain interval must elapse between the loan and the lecture. In fact, he didn't see very well how he could admonish and instruct until the loan had been canceled—that is, until the first of the new year.

Pacing the floor, disturbed, uncertain as to the course he should pursue, he looked up presently to see Miss Erroll descending the stairs, fresh and sweet in her radiant plumage. As she caught his eye she waved a silvery chinchilla muff at him—a marching salute—and passed on, calling back to him, "Don't forget Gerald!"

"No," he said, "I won't forget Gerald." He stood a moment at the window watching the brougham below, where Nina awaited Miss Erroll. Then abruptly he turned back into the room and picked up the telephone receiver, muttering, "This is no time to mince matters for the sake of appearances." And he called up Gerald at the offices of Neergard & Co.

"Is it you, Gerald?" he asked pleasantly. "It's all right about that matter. I've sent you a note by your messenger. But I want to talk to you about another matter—something concerning myself. I want to ask your advice, in a way. Can you be at the Lenox at 6? You have an engagement at 8? Oh, that's all right. I won't keep you. It's understood, then—the Lenox at 6. Goodbye!"

There was the usual early evening influx of men at the Lenox who dropped in for a glance at the ticker or for a cocktail or a game of billiards or a bit of gossip before going home to bed.

Selwyn sauntered over to the basket, inspected a yard or two of tape, then strolled toward the window, nodding to Bradley Harmon and Sandon Craig. As he turned his face to the window and his back to the room Harmon came up rather effusively, offering an unusually thin, flat hand and further hospitality, pleasantly declined by Selwyn.

"Horrible thing, a cocktail," observed Harmon after giving his own order and seating himself opposite Selwyn. "I don't usually do it. Here comes the man who persuades me—my own partner."

PAIN

Pain in the head—pain anywhere, has its cause. Pain is congestion, pain is blood pressure—nothing else usually. At least, so says Dr. Shoop, and to prove it he has created a little pink tablet. That tablet—called Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablets—takes blood pressure away from pain centers. Its effect is charming, pleasingly delightful. Gently though safely, it surely equalizes the blood circulation.

If you have a headache, it's blood pressure. If it's painful periods with women, same cause. If you are sleepless, restless, nervous, it's blood congestion—blood pressure. That surely is a certainty, for Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablets stop it in 20 minutes, and the tablets simply distribute the unnatural blood pressure.

Bruse your finger, and doesn't it get red, and swell, and pain you? Of course it does. It's congestion, blood pressure. You'll find it where pain is—always. It's simply Common Sense.

We sell at 25 cents, and cheerfully recommend Selwyn looked up to see Fane approaching, and instantly a dark flush overspread his face. "You know George Fane, don't you?" continued Harmon easily. "Well, that's odd. I thought, of course—Captain Selwyn, Mr. Fane. It's not usual, but it's done."

They exchanged formalities—dry and brief on Selwyn's part, gracefully urbane on Fane's.

Sandon Craig and Billy Fleetwood came wandering up and joined them. One or two other men, drifting by, adhered to the group.

Selwyn, involved in small talk, glanced sideways at the great clock and gathered himself together for departure.

Fleetwood was saying to Craig, "Certainly it was a stiff game—Bradley, myself, Gerald Erroll, Mrs. Delmour-Carnes and the Ruthvins."

"Were you hit?" asked Craig, interested.

"No; about even. Gerald got it good and plenty, though. The Ruthvins were ahead, as usual."

Selwyn, apparently hearing nothing, quietly rose and stepped out of the circle, paused to set fire to a cigarette and then strolled off toward the visitors' room, where Gerald was now due. He found young Erroll just entering the room and greeted him with nervous cordiality.

"If you can't stay and dine with me," he said, "I won't put you down. You know, of course, I can only ask you once in a year, so we'll stay here and chat a bit."

"Right you are," said young Erroll, flinging off his very new and very fashionable overcoat—a wonderfully handsome boy, with all the attraction that a quick, warm, impulsive manner carries. "And I say, Selwyn, it was awfully decent of you to—"

"Bosh! Friends are for that sort of thing, Gerald. Sit here." He looked at the young man hesitatingly, but Gerald calmly took the matter out of his jurisdiction by nodding his order to the club attendant.

"Lord, but I'm tired," he said, sinking back into a big armchair. "I was up till daylight, and then I had to be in the office by 9, and tonight Billy Fleetwood is giving—oh, something or other. By the way, the market isn't doing a thing to the shorts. You're not in, are you, Selwyn?"

Selwyn quietly rose and stepped out of the circle.

"No, not that way. I hope you are not either, are you, Gerald?" "Oh, it's all right," replied the young fellow confidently, and, raising his glass, he nodded at Selwyn, with a smile.

"You were mighty nice to me anyhow," he said, setting his glass aside and lighting a cigar. "You see, I went to a dance, and after awhile some of us cleared out, and Jack Ruthven offered us trouble, so half a dozen of us went there. I had the worst cards a man ever drew to a kicker. That was all about it."

"Do you mind saying whether you banked my check and drew against it?" asked Selwyn.

"Why, no; I just indorsed it over."

"To—to whom, if I may venture?"

"Certainly," he said with a laugh. "To Mrs. Jack."—Then in a flash for "You were mighty nice to me anyhow," he said.

the first time the boy realized what he was saying and stopped aghast, scarlet to his hair.

Selwyn's face had little color remaining in it, but he said very kindly: "It's all right, Gerald. Don't worry."

"I'm a beast!" broke out the boy. "I beg your pardon a thousand times."

"Granted, old chap. But, Gerald, may I say one thing—or perhaps two?" "Go ahead. Give it to me good and plenty."

"It's only this: Couldn't you and I see one another a little oftener? Don't be afraid of me. I'm no wet blanket. I'm not so very aged either. I know something of the world; I understand something of men. I'm pretty good company, Gerald. What do you say?"

"I say sure!" cried the boy warmly.

"It's a go, then. And one thing more: Couldn't you manage to come up to the house a little oftener? Everybody misses you, of course. I think your sister is a trifle sensitive."

"I will," said Gerald, blushing. "Somehow I've had such a lot on hand—all day at the office and something on every evening. I know perfectly well I've neglected Elly—and everybody. But the first moment I can find free—"

Selwyn nodded. "And last of all," he said, "there's something about my own affairs that I thought you might advise me on."

Gerald, proud, enchanted, stood very straight. The older man continued gravely:

"I've a little capital to invest—not very much. Suppose—and this, I need not add, is in confidence between us—suppose I suggested to Mr. Neergard—"

"Oh," cried young Erroll, delighted, "that is fine! Neergard would be glad enough. Why, we've got that Valleydale tract in shape now, and there are scores of schemes in the air—scores of them—important moves which may mean anything!" he ended excitedly.

"Then you think it would be all right—in case Neergard likes the idea?" Gerald was enthusiastic. After awhile they shook hands, it being time to separate. And for a long time Selwyn sat there alone in the visitors' room, absent eyed, facing the blazing fire of cannon coal.

How to be friends with this boy without openly playing the mentor; how to gain his confidence without appearing to seek it; how to influence him without alarming him! No, there was no great harm in him yet; only the impulse of inconsiderate youth; only an enthusiastic capacity for pleasure.

One thing was imperative—the boy must cut out his card playing for stakes at once, and there was a way to accomplish that by impressing Gerald with the idea that to do anything behind Neergard's back which he would not care to tell him about was a sort of treachery.

PORT AU PRINCE GIVEN A RESPITE

Expected Battle at Gates of Capital Deferred.

SIMON MARCHING ON JACMEL

Bent on Overcoming the Sole Stronghold of Loyalists in the Department of the South Before Trying Final Issues With Nord Alexis, the Revolutionary Leader Has Changed His Plan of Battle and While Port au Prince Is Given a Breathing Spell, It Is Generally Believed That the Government Position Is Hopelessly Lost.

Port au Prince, Dec. 2.—The expected battle between the revolutionists and the troops of the government, which are entrenched a few miles outside the city, is likely to be deferred for several days. General Antoine Simon, the commander-in-chief of the revolutionary forces, has decided to attack Jacmel, which lies thirty miles to the southwest of this city and which is the only town that has remained loyal in the department of the south, before resuming his march on Port au Prince.

It is believed, however, that the situation, so far as the government is concerned, is lost. Louis Borno, the minister of state, has handed in his resignation and has taken refuge in the German legation, and there now remain in office only three of the high governmental officials, General Leconte, minister of the interior; General Laleau, minister of justice and public instruction, and General Marcelin, minister of finance and commerce. All the other ministers have resigned with the exception of General Cyriaque, who after his recent defeat at the hands of the insurgents, is believed to have found an asylum in one of the foreign consulates.

It was Louis Borno who took up the portfolio of state relinquished by General Sannon when he sought refuge

MILLIONS OF LIVES LOST

The Awful Toll Collected by Consumption.

If people could understand that Catarrh is an internal scrofula—that nothing applied externally does much good—they would not need to be warned so often about this fatal disease, which, when neglected, invariably ends up in Consumption at the cost of millions of lives every year. Yet Catarrh is easily cured if the right treatment is employed.

Catarrh is caused by germs in the blood which circulate throughout the entire system. External remedies give but temporary ease. Although the effects are often seen in the form of pimples, rash, eczema or dry scaly skin, the trouble is internal, and can never be cured by external remedies.

The only way to cure Catarrh is by employing a medicine which is absorbed and carried in the blood to all parts of the system, so that the mucous membrane or internal lining of the body is thoroughly medicated, soothed, disinfected of germ matter, and the soreness healed.

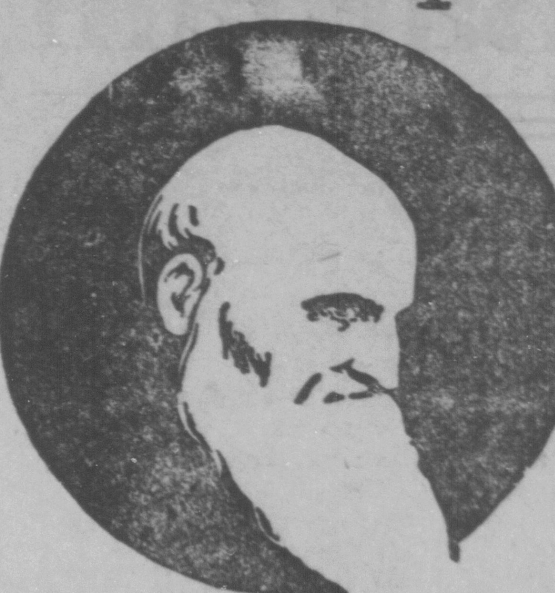

We have a remedy prepared from the prescription of a physician who for thirty years studied and made Catarrh a specialty and whose record of success was a cure in every case where his treatment was followed as prescribed. That remedy is Rexall Mucun-Tone. We are so positive that it will cure Catarrh in all its forms, whether acute or chronic, that we promise to return every penny paid us for the medicine in every case where it fails to cure or for any reason does not satisfy the user.

We want you to try Rexall Mucun-Tone on our recommendation and guarantee. We are right here where you live, and you do not contract any obligation or risk when you try Rexall Mucun-Tone in two sizes. The prices are 50c and $1.00. Very often the 50c size effects a cure. Of course in chronic cases a longer treatment is necessary. The average in such instances is three $1.00 bottles. from the French legation last March after resigning. He was credited with inducing President Alexis to permit the departure in safety of General Firmin and the other revolutionary agitators, who had fled to the legations and consulates at Port au Prince and Gonaives at the time of the last uprising.

It is believed that the intention of the president in calling an extraordinary session of the chambers is to have them name his successor. President Alexis favors either of two candidates for the office, General Turenne Jean Gilles and Solon Menos, a distinguished lawyer. But there is doubt that a quorum could be secured because of the absence of the great majority of the deputies and senators of the department of the south. General Gilles has been a favorite of General Alexis and is a strong supporter of his policies.

The three divisions of government troops, entrenched at the crossroads outside the city are being depleted by numerous desertions. While every effort has been made to hold the troops together, and there have been few outward signs of disaffection, the government soldiers have taken the first opportunity to slip away. Some of these undoubtedly will join the insurgent army. General Simon will enter Port au Prince probably without striking a blow, and it may be without causing disturbance in the order of things, if President Nord Alexis takes his departure from the city before the arrival of the enemy. The situation will be critical if the president elects to remain.

The arrival of the American cruiser Des Moines has given added assurance to the foreign residents. The Des Moines and the Tacoma represent the United States here, while the French training ship Duguay Trouin is watching French interests along the coast. The British cruiser Scylla and the Italian cruiser Fieramosca are expected to arrive in port before the advancing army reaches the gates of the city.

The president has angrily resisted the counsels of his ministers and the diplomatic representations which have been made to him to give up the struggle.

Wide Order by the President.

Washington, Dec. 2.—All fourth-class postmasters in the states east of the Mississippi river and north of the Ohio river have been placed in the classified service by an executive order of the president. Hereafter all the appointees to fourth-class postmasterhips in those states must undergo civil service examinations. Postmasters now holding office will not need to take the examinations. There are 15,000 fourth-class postmasters affected by the order. Of this number 1,084 are in Indiana.

Probably Carried Out to Sea.

San Francisco, Dec. 1.—Although numerous boats have patrolled and searched the bay from the Golden Gate to Hunter's Point, the body of Chief of Police William J. Biggley, who disappeared from the police launch patrol and is believed to have fallen overboard while returning to this city from Belvidere, on the north shore, has not been recovered, and it is feared has been carried out to sea.

Woodruff Will Plead Insanity.

Brookville, Ind., Dec. 2.—The trial of the State vs. Jesse Woodruff for the murder of his wife is in progress in the circuit court here. The defense will present its case on the plea of insanity. The crime for which Woodruff is being tried was committed on Sept. 7. Neighbors heard cries for help and calling the police, forced open the door of the Woodruff home. Mrs. Woodruff was found dead with three bullet holes through her body and her skull crushed. Near her lay the apparently lifeless body of her husband, with self-inflicted wounds, from which he recovered. The trial will last several days.

Engineer's Guesome Discovery.

Hammond, Ind., Dec. 2.—A terrible fate befell Alfred Smith, a Pennsylvania freight brakeman, at Hobart, when he was struck by a "flyer" going at the rate of sixty miles an hour. The crew on the "flyer" did not know that anyone had been struck until the train stopped at Tolleston. There, while the engineer was oiling his engine, he found the man's head on the pilot.

COLLIERY PROBLEMS UP FOR DISCUSSION

American Mining Congress Convenes at Philadelphia Today.

Pittsburg, Dec. 2.—Delegates from all parts of the United States convened here today in the opening session of the American mining congress.
 They were received with addresses of welcome by city officials, who dwell on the importance of the objects of the congress.

The purpose of the congress is the promotion of uniform state legislation relating to the mining industry, the protection of the lives of mine workers, the protection of investors in mine stocks and the prevention of unnecessary waste. During the sessions of the congress addresses on these and related topics will be delivered by prominent men, among whom James J. Hill, Edward H. Harriman and John Hays Hammond are counted upon.

One of the most interesting features of the congress will be the gathering on Friday of governors of states in which mining is an important industry. Governor Stuart has sent invitations to the governors of sixteen states and many of them have signified their intention of being present. Several United States senators will also take part in the discussion, which is expected to bear fruit in the establishment of mining reforms in the states as well as in the enactment of reformatory federal legislation.

CANNON FEELS SURE OF GAVEL

Speaker's Friends Say His Re-Election Is a Cinch.

ILLINOIS DELEGATION SOLID

Congressman Mann, Who Has Uncle Joe's Campaign for Re-Election in Hand, Has Received Unequivocal
 Answers From More Than a Majority of the Republican Members That They Will Support Cannon, and Is Quite Sure of Majority of the House
 When the Day for Voting Comes.

Washington, Dec. 2.—Friends of Speaker Cannon profess to be highly pleased with the responses to letters which Representative James R. Mann of Chicago has been sending to the members announcing that the Illinois delegation will present the name of Joseph G. Cannon for speaker of the Sixty-first congress. They state that these answers assure the re-election of the speaker.

Representative Mann admitted that he had received unequivocal answers from more than a majority of the Republicans of the house, saying that they would support Mr. Cannon. This number has not yet reached a majority of the house. Mr. Mann explained that a number, principally new members, had written that they desired to look over the situation and investigate the subject more thoroughly before replying in a way that might be considered as a pledge. It is said that only one member of the house has replied that he will oppose the re-election of Mr.
 Cannon as speaker.

Attention is gradually shifting from the speakership to the proposal to amend the rules of the house. There are indications that the speaker may not offer much opposition to some amendments, at least. One of the amendments suggested is a provision for a calendar patterned after procedure in the senate, whereby the roll of bills would be called frequently for passage under unanimous consent.
 This would obviate the necessity of members going to the speaker and asking to be recognized for the purpose of asking unanimous consent for the passage of a bill.

DEFICIT CONTINUES

Uncle Sam's Books Still Show Balance on Wrong Side.

Washington, Dec. 2.—Although the government receipts from customs internal revenue and other sources continue to show gratifying increases over last year, the increases in expenditures are materially greater. For the month of November the total receipts were $48,002,690, as against $45,529,325 for November last year, an increase of $2,500,000.

The expenditures for the month are shown to have aggregated $57,938,133, as against $42,362,208 for November, 1907, an increase of $15,500,000. Taking the last seven months as a basis of calculation, the deficit for the present fiscal year will probably be from $112,000,000 to $115,000,000. Customs receipts during the last month aggregated nearly $23,000,000, as against $22,000,000 for November, 1907, the first of the panic months. Internal revenue also shows a gain of about $2,600,000. Miscellaneous receipts fell off about $1,100,000.

Fated Mine Practically Cleared.

Pittsburg, Dec. 2.—It is believed that all but two victims of the explosion in the Marianna mines of the Pittsburg-Buffalo Coal company last Saturday have been recovered. One hundred and twenty-six bodies have been hoisted from the bottom of the 500-foot shaft and turned over to undertakers at work in improvised morgues near the mine. All of the debris has been pretty well worked over and it is not believed its final removal will reveal more than two additional bodies.

Passenger Train's Close Call.

Peoria, Ill., Dec. 2.—An attempt was made to wreck the Toledo, Peoria & Western passenger train between Ef-fner and Sheldon stations. A trackman on a speeder was ditched at the prospective point of the wreck, and after recovering his equilibrium, ran back and flagged the heavy passenger train with over sixty passengers aboard, in time to avoid a disaster.
 An investigation showed that spikes had been removed and the rails spread.

Things Coming Deneen's Way.

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 2.—At a conference of Republican members of the state legislature, forty-seven members signed a pledge looking to the organization of that body when the legislature meets in January, giving control of the lower house to Governor Deneen and insuring the election of a speaker in harmony with the administration.
 Similar action by which the governor will control the senate organization has already been taken.

The monthly statement of the director of the mint shows that during November the coinage at the mints of the United States amounted to $8,817,210.
